

Precis

Patients with metastatic melanoma who are HLA-A201* will be immunized with recombinant fowlpox virus encoding a modified peptide from the gp100 molecule preceded by a signal sequence designed to improve peptide presentation by antigen presenting cells. This virus will be administered either intramuscularly or intravenously. Patients will be evaluated for clinical response, as well as undergo studies of the immunologic response to the virus immunization.